Happenings at CCC—

Standing on Their Shoulders

Whether we realize it or not, we’re building something together.

As the body of Christ, we’re building a culture, not with bricks and mortar, but through how we treat one another, the gifts we share, the people we welcome, and the ways we serve God and neighbor.

Every act of ministry, every word of encouragement, every decision about how we use what God has given us shapes the church we’re becoming. So do the times we fail to listen, overlook someone in need, or forget why we’re here.

But we didn’t start from nothing.

We stand on the shoulders of those who came before us: people who prayed, taught Sunday School, served meals, cared for the sick, welcomed strangers, and gave generously so this congregation could continue its ministry. Some were leaders; others worked quietly behind the scenes.

This Sunday is All Saints Sunday, when we remember those who have passed away this year and give thanks for their lives and faith. They weren’t perfect. Neither are we. But through them, God’s love took shape among us, and the culture they built is part of what we’ve inherited.

Now it’s our turn. We’re building a culture whether we intend to or not. The question is, what kind?

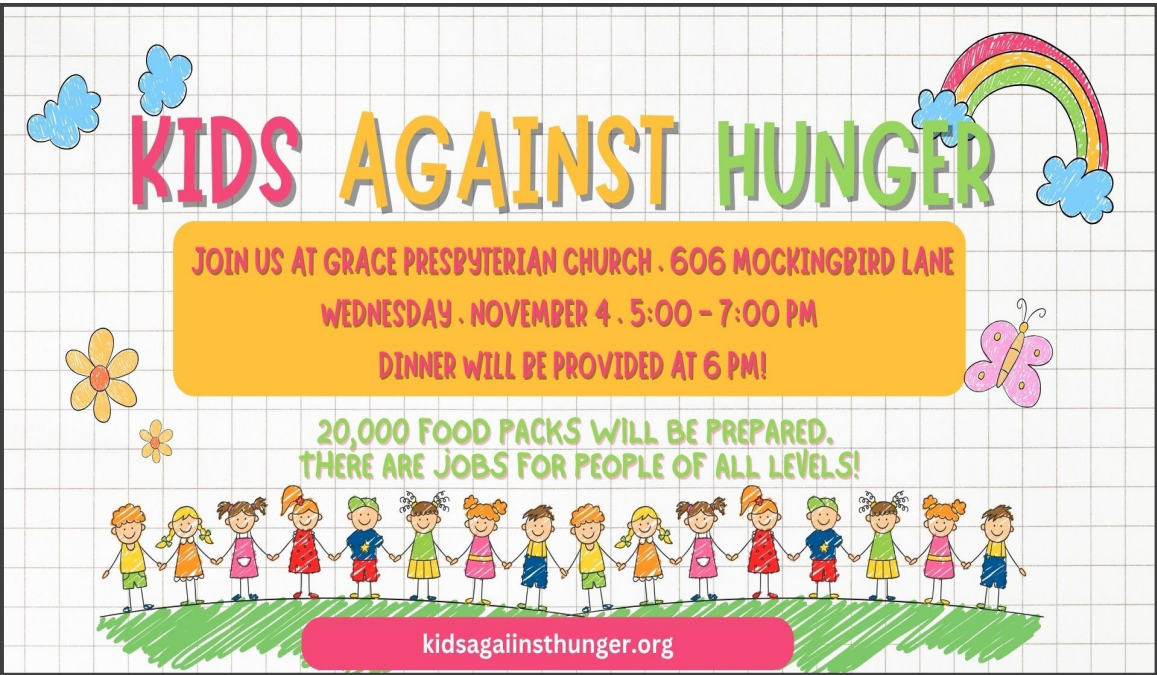

I believe we continue the work of the saints by nurturing a culture where people experience the love of Christ, where all are welcome to grow our faith, live our faith, and share our faith—together.

Next Sunday, at our Celebration of Ministries, we’ll begin asking together what God is calling us to build next.

Someday, others will stand on our shoulders, just as we stand on the shoulders of those who came before us.

What will we give them to build upon?

Peace, Dan
